8. PLEASE NOTE: No matter how fast your connection to the Internet, speeds on the Internet itself can affect download performance. While METC users are connected, actual downloads from the Internet will vary in speed. Factors that govern an Internet download speed include the performance of the server hosting the website requested, the bandwidth of the connection between the website's server and the Internet, Internet traffic patterns, router latency and backbone usage. FTP file transfers will be received at higher speeds than HTML web pages. Certain times of day tend to have higher Internet traffic than others. Components in user's PCs may also impose certain speed limitations.
